

I am writing to comment on the proposed changes that would affect Indiana's no-call list for telemarketers. As soon as I heard about this no-call list, I immediately signed up for it. I had been receiving several unwanted calls a day. Since the no-call list went into effect, I only receive one every week or two. I realize that they are simply doing a job, but phone solicitors/telemarketers are one of the most annoying inventions ever conceived. If I wish to sign up for a new credit card, or purchase life insurance, or subscribe to a newspaper or magazine, or anything of that nature, I am perfectly capable of taking care of that myself. Everyone on this list has specifically stated they do NOT wish to receive phone calls of this nature. Please do not make that choice pointless.
